

Buying options

Editions

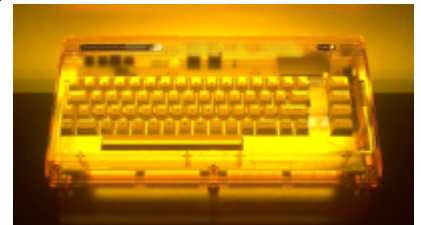

There are 3 editions. The 'Basic beige' version with the classic look. And that also the most affordable version. $350

The 'Starlight Edition'. It has a transparent case and has built in LED-lights. And software control options for those lights. It is mid priced. $400

The 'Founders edition'. It also has transparent case and built in LED-lights. But it has a distinctive gold-yellow colour and a golden coloured keyboard. This is the most expensive version. $550

Besides the esthetics and the LED-lights all versions are the same. The technical specifications and included accessories are exactly the same.

The only place to buy them at present is via the website of Commodore:

- <https://www.commodore.net/category/computers>

If you use this referral link you get $10 off.

- www.commodore.net/referral/wztYNJLk8qln

Note: there is actually a 4th computer option on the Commodore website buy. The 'Commodore 64X'. That is a 'normal computer' inside a Commodore 64 case. It runs a custom C64 themed Linux distribution. But as being a modern computer you can install also Windows on it.

From:

<https://c64u.org/dokuwiki/> - C64 Ultimate Wiki

Permanent link:

https://c64u.org/dokuwiki/buying_a_commodore_64u?rev=1767653886

Last update: 2026/01/05 22:58

