

Buying options

Editions

There are 3 editions.

Basic

The 'Basic beige' version with the classic look. This is also the most affordable version. $350

Starlight

The 'Starlight Edition'. It has a transparent case and PCB and has built in LED-lights. And software control options for those lights. It is mid priced. - $400

Founders

The 'Founders edition'. It also has a transparent case and PCB with built in LED-lights. But it has a distinctive gold-yellow colour and a golden coloured keyboard. This is the most expensive version. - $550

The difference between editions

Besides the esthetics and the LED-lights are all Commodore 64 Ultimate editions exactly the same from a technical point of view and included materials.

To obtain the transparent effect of the Starlight and Founders editions lighter materials are used for the construction. This makes the device less sturdy then the basic beige edition. Some buyers have reported their example flexes a lot when pressing the keyboard. Other buyers say it is present but acceptable.

Flexing could be the result of incorrect assembly and can be significantly reduced by correcting those mistakes if present.

3th party 3D printed braces have been created to increase the structural strengt if deemed needed.

Note: listed prices is without value added tax, shipping and potential import tax. Depending of the destination the final price can differ significantly. When ordering you get a better idea of the final price.

How to buy

The only place to buy them at present is via the website of Commodore:

- <https://www.commodore.net/category/computers>

If you use this referral link you get $10 off.

- www.commodore.net/referral/wztYNJLk8qln

[fundamentals]

From:

<https://c64u.org/dokuwiki/> - C64 Ultimate Wiki

Permanent link:

https://c64u.org/dokuwiki/buying\_a\_commodore\_64u?rev=1768162776

Last update: 2026/01/11 20:19

